Getting to One's Mind

Getting to One's Mind

Stuck in a corner,
>ignoring the shrieks.
Its only been minutes,
>but it feels like weeks.

The monsters attacked,
>a little while ago.
You tried to defend,
>but their assault never slowed.

Backpedaling fast,
>with your gun blazing.
Nowhere to run,
>with the monsters hell raising.

Tripping over sprawled bodies,
>and out of ammunition,
you need to get to a door,
>its your only ambition.

Slamming the door behind you,
>your trapped in a room.
Running to hide in the corner,
>and wait for everyone's doom.

You hear the footsteps of soldiers,
>and the screams begin.
You know that they're dying,
>your minds clawing from within.

Your heart is pounding fiercely,
>why weren't the monsters still confined?
All you can do is wait,
>and see if it's the end of mankind.

Minutes tick by,

>with fear and adrenaline combined,
everything seems slower,
>the creatures can easily get to ones mind.

End
file.
